

Courage and stupidity

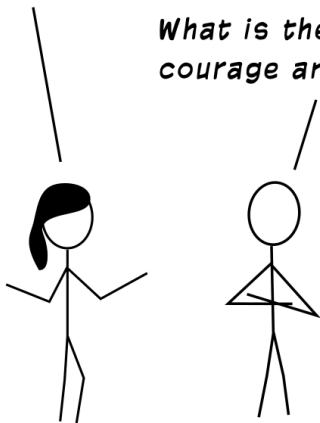

Some say that courage is lack of fear.

Some say that courage is to do something that you fear to do.

But there is also a third option, where courage can't be confused with stupidity.

What is the difference between courage and stupidity?

When you need to do something dangerous, then you can mitigate the probability and impact of it.

And it will not be as dangerous anymore! (or not as much).

So, when I do it, people will still think I have courage!

Yes, and you will know, that you are not doing something stupid.
